Britain's Maginot Lines

GERMANY'S claim that Great Britain's favorite strategy of blockade and encirclement has been lurned against it must be heard respectfully, in the long pull of the war, which the United States is determined to keep the British from losing, it would be a fact of the first magnitude. Britain has not one but many counterparts of the French Maginot line. They are the trade routes linking it to the outposts of the empire. If the axis powers can accomplish against Britsin's lines what Germany accomplished against France's defense-If it can flank the outposts of its enemy's security—the whole pattern of the war will be attered.

That is the meaning of negotiations to bring Spain, which controls Gibraltar, under axis domination. It is the meaning of the trenty with Japan, which controls the destiny of Hong Kong and Singapore. It is the meaning of the original axis itself; Italy's function is to sever the British line through the Mediterranean to India and Australia. The British navy's ability to withstand these attacks alone is more theoretical than actual as long as Germany remains in position to threaten invasion of Great Britain, itself. Even before the war, when it was contemplated that the French navy would be a match for Italian naval power in the Mediterranean, it was plain that naval security in the Pacific would become the obligation of the United States.

As the war develops, as it becomes plainer day by day that axis strategy calls for encirclement of Great Britain, the potential obligations of the United States if it remains pledged to the proposition that Britain must not lose the war are increasing enormously. It is not going to be enough to save Great Britain from Invasion. To bring the war to a definite conclusion advantageous to Britain it must be saved from economic strangulation.

His situation is desperate. He is trying to save his sitin. They are holding him prisoner in Seville, Spain. There is no place for a monarch to rest his weary bones. It's serious.

But-in the old days someone would have popped right up with the idea of bringing Carol over here without delay for a round of onenight stands in vaudoville. Today, of course, personal appearances would be the racket. With a curtsy to remembrance, royalty, the gravity the situation which is Upping over thrones and palaces and "all stuff like that there," how about having the king over for some personal appearances? With Madam Lupescu to add the "angle," it would be a breeze.

How To Fight a Bee

A VACATION trip down into Washington county where many of the rural residents are descendants of those ploneers who carved the beginning of Ohio out of the wilderness back in 1788 rarely falled to provide a true story touched with the simple, human philosophy of plain people. This one springs from a picturesque old character who ekes out a somewhat precarious living mainly by catching catfish in the summer and trapping skunks in the winter. He is also known thereabouts as a bee hunter and frequently brings in a store of the dark, tangy wild honey oblained by chopping down the tree in which some nomad swarm has taken up its home.

On this trip he took along several novices id as they came near the tree one of a little cautious about the possible results, asked: "Aren't you afraid of the bees?"
"What! Afraid of a little bee?" grouched the old trapper. "And me with an ax on my shoul-

Time Fights on China's Side

A LTHOUGH many Americans busy following the more spectacular European war may not have noticed, China still is holding out bravely against the onslaughts of Nippon's legions after more than three long years of gruelling warfare. Driven back, punished with bombs, stripped of capitals and lands, the Chinese carry on with no sign of surrender.

Whence comes this patience and ability to hang on doggedly and wait? The clue may be found in the fact that recently in bomb-blasted Chungking the stolid orientals celebrated the 2492nd anniversary of Confucius, Chinese sage venerated through the ages.

Time in a civilization so ancient, space in a land so vast and human life in a country so populous are measured differently from that in the western world. After three years of war China recalls centuries of punishment. Confucius say: "Time, the enemy of westerners, is China's friend."

More than one Willskie spokesman is already saying privately that the whole tone of the new administration must be one of coalition, a convincing contilion, to gain the confidence of warring elements in the electorate.

Congressional Outlook
Publicly the Democratic congressional directors have been cualming they will lose nothing in the house, but their confidential reports contemplate a Republican gain of 25 seats. (Republicans claim a 52 to 70 gain, numing the seats in widely scattered states such as Oktahoma and Maryland, Kentucky and Virginia.)
This indicates some common nation, to gain the confidence of warring elements in the electorate.

Difficult Problem

Mr. Roosevelt obviously will have difficulty gaining the leust of the business elements and others who have opposed him. Unauthoritative suggestions have been made that he would offer his defeated opponent the chairmanship of the defense commission. That would be a bold, decisive stroke. Two Republicans now are in the cabinet but they do not represent the official international vlews of the Republican now are in the cabinet but they do not represent the official international vlews of the Republican party. It has been suggested also that Mr. Roosevelt may issue a "let'sget-logether" statement, in case of victory, but the situation calls rather for convincing expression by action.

No Reprisals

Whatever is done, it is certain the White House could not start off its third term in any event with political reprisals. No effort was made during the campaign to discourage fear among many prominent Democrats that their business concerns would become involved in income tax, wage-bour and other governmental difficulties if they took a public stand for Wilkie. Some such junishment appears to have been meted out in the past.

New times now call so loudly for genuine trust and authentic unity as to guarantee the end of any such tactics.

Many Wen't Vote Not So Dirty

Worked-up politicos have been complaining that this was a very dirty campaign, but to less well-heated and less partisan observers it has not seemed so. Bitterness there was aplenty, and vandalism and personal violence, beyond all precedent, but not much more than the usual amount of dirt especially when compared with what might have been thrown, had the International situation been less tense.

It is true the Democrats had their stumplets like lekes who fa-vor venom rather than reasoning, but these were kept fairly much in the background during the lat-ter stages. Nothing happened in the cam-paign that cannot be washed out by a little sincere scrubbing.

This indicates some common agreement in advance that the next house will be stronger anti-Roosevelt than the existing one which has discouraged much Roosevelt action (the natinal labor relations board for instance).

Willen the returns are in, just about half the people, those who voted for the loser, will have to ask themselves how seriously they believe the campaign orators who told them that democracy was lost if their opponents won the election. Much will depend on how the losers answer this question. If they believe seriously Mr. Wilkle is the head and front of an unholy alliance of reactionaries and front of an unholy alliance of reactionaries and revolutionists or that Mr. Roosevelt is the center of an effort to set up a dictatorship and eshablish national socialism, then the loser cannot accept the result of this election as Americans to set up a dictatoship and esponsible to the like loser cannol accept the result of this election as Americans have always, with the dreadful exception only of the election of 1880, accepted the results of all their elections.

But as a matter of fact the nation will accept the result because accepting the result because accepting the result is the deep habit of this, the oldest and most solidly established democracy on earth. The nation will accept the result because the people know in their hearts that the results because the people know in their hearts that the result because the people know in their hearts that the month of October before elections and the rhetorical threats and the rhetorical promises which they have just been hearing belong to the routine of campalgning in the month of October before elections and that for every grain of truth these political words contain there are ien grains of buncombe.

Common Sense

Were it not for this habitual common sense, which resis upon three centuries of experience on this scil with lawful and responsible government, elections here would not be elections; they would be, as in so many other lands where democracy is not deeply rooted in habit, the prelade to civil war. This common sense will now prevail. Thomps accem temporated have each the lase between undesirable tendencies here where democracy is allva and horrifying accomplished facts abroad where democracy is to prevent undesirable facts abroad where democracy is to prevent undesirable facts abroad where democracy on all living democracy is to prevent undesirable tendencies can kill democracy, whereas, in fact, it is only when democracy has already been killed. ever dared to restore democracy, no matter how popular it pretended to be.

The role of democracy Is well exemplified by the episode of President Roosevelt's attempt to pack the supreme court—a case which Mr. Sullivan frequently sites, and correctly, to illustrate a most undesirable tendency toward unrestrained power within the New Deal. But what is important about that episode is that it was an episode, that the attempt to pack the court failed because the opposition had a free press in which to touse the people to the danger and a free congress to reject the proposal. It was the living democracy of the American people which checked the lendency to unrestrained power, and it checked the tendency because the sovereign power remained in the democracy. That is why despoism can begin only if democracy has first been suppressed by a conspiracy or a coup d'etat.

A Dull Winter

Senor Sanchez and the Other Dade County Night Clubber Will Work Out in 15 Hot Spots

By DAMON RUNYON

THE NEWS from Mismi Beach, down in Deat County, Fla., is not good. The city county has decreed that there shall be no more that is night clubs on the beach this coming winter, the same number as last year. The actic was taken at a recent meeting of the count on motion of Mayor John H. Levi. It does not appear that there was any discussion or reflection on the matter. It can before the council through a number of applications for licenses for new night clubs. Mayor Levi moved that only locations used last year for that purpose be considered, remarking:

or Levi moved that only locamons used last year for that purpose be considered, remarking:

"We already have enough might clubs around here."

This crack might be taken to reflect an arbitrary and dictatorial mind, but we happen to know Mayor Levi. We can assure you that he is not at all that way. He is a most reasonable gentleman. Most likely he just did not give sufficient thought to a structure which some of our most promient with the restriction of their normal activities. We wish Mayor Levi had withheld his motion until he had the opportunity of consuling with a neighbor of his on Star Island, Sencry Jorge Sanchez, the greatest living authorny owinght clubs not only in Dade county, out any, where you can think of right quick. Sercy Sanchez is a sugar planter from Cuba who his a winter home just around the bend in the road from Mayor Levi.

THEY HAVE never met, but that is not Sency Sanchez is a sugar planter from Cuba who his a winter home just around the mayor was in her and asleep. Sency Sanchez has never so states publicly, but we suspect he harbors the opinion that a city with a mayor who goes to bed that early and has only 15 night clubs is lacking in the true spirit of civic progress.

The night club season in Dade county is not considered officially open until Senor Sanchez gets through grinding the sugar cane over in Cuba and moves into winter residence on Star Island. He is slender, dapper, and Impressiva and he has his clothes made with bellows pockets to accommodate plenty of soft money.

The rumor that a siren sounds in every night club in Dade county when Senor Sanchez crossat the bridge between Star Island and the causeway connecting Miami and Miami Beach is not true. They just have a fellow stationed in a palm tree opposite Senor Sanchez' residence. This fellow sends up a rocket when Senor Sanchez appears looking bulgy enough to indicate he is steeping out for the evening.

HE GOES through those 15 night clubs like water through a tin horn. Sometimes re appears looking builgy enough to indicate he is stepping out for the evening.

HE GOES through those 15 night clubs like water through a tin horn. Sometimes as doubles through them the same night, and sometimes he also goes through the night clubs of Miami. Coral Gables and Broward county, which do not come under the jurisdiction of Mayor Levi. But Senor Sanchez would prefer to co-fline himself to home industry, if they would only give him a little racing room.

He had been hoping, in common with many wither residents of Dade county, that with they amazing growth of Miami Beach, there would also be expansion of the official viewpoint is cover the dull interim between the last night club and bed. It can not possibly take a farman like Senor Sanchez beyond 6 a. m. to make 15 night clubs, and then he was a couple of loose hours on his hands with nothing to do. Once he thought of going to bed earlier, but then he reflected that it might get noised about and they would want to elect him mayor.

It has been suggested that the static period could be nicely spaced out by the addition of a few more night clubs, but that requires the coperation of the city officials, and you can see how co-operative they feel. Senor Sanchez and the rest of the night clubbers must continue to endure the terrible ennui of only 15 night clubs

Another installment in The Star's list of names of Marion county men whose numbers were drawn in the national draft lottery at Washington Tuesday appears below. It picks up where yesterday's list left off.

The first number listed in each instance is the national lottery number-which shows the order of the drawing at Washington. Not all the national lottery numbers are listed because they did not all apply to Marion county. This accounts for the fact that a great many national lottery numbers were skipped in the list.

After the national number in each instance appears the registrant's serial number in parenthesis. Then come the names and addresses of men with that social number. Because Marion county's three draft boards have different totals of registered men, some of the numbers listed here affect only one man, some affect two and some affect three.
